Judge Okays Savings Reorganization Plan

Operation Next June Is Hoped

By BEN AVERY

REORGANIZATION of Arizona Savings and Loan Association was approved yesterday by Superior Judge Lorna E. Lockwood.

Only one dissenting voice was raised in the hearing, which was attended by a packed courtroom of shareholders. And Louis B. Whitney, receivership attorney, reported that 16,309 of the 34,000 active accounts have sent in ballots approving the reorganization. They represent deposits totaling $28,111,020.97, Whitney said, well in excess of the two-thirds required by law.

Judge Lockwood said she would sign an order approving creation of a new firm to be known as Greater Arizona Savings and Loan Association, and turning over to it all of the insurable assets.

Maxwell E. Greenberg of Beverly Hills, Calif., spokesman for himself, Morris Shapiro and Ben Weingard, also coast financiers, who proposed the reorganization plan, spent nearly two hours on the witness stand explaining the plan, and answering questions. He said it was hoped the new firm could open for operation by next June.

The lone dissenter was William M. Boyd, who opposed all proposals for reorganization, and who indicated that he believed the court should turn all of the assets of Arizona Savings over to a committee he organized and heads for liquidation by that group.

IN ONE CHARGE Boyd accused the proposed reorganizers of making a huge profit, and in the next he said that all of the shareholders would withdraw their funds from the new company and throw it into receivership again.

Greenberg returned to the witness stand to point out Boyd's inconsistency, and to question his faith in both the State of Arizona and the shareholders.

"We would not invest our money if we did not have faith in the shareholders," said Greenberg.

The new firm is required to invest a minimum of $500,000, but Greenberg estimated $300,000 would be needed if $15 million assets are taken.

John Savoy, attorney for the for management of Arizona Savings, endorsed the reorganization plan as being in the best interests of the shareholders.

Ray B. Lucas a co-receiver and a former Missouri Supreme Court justice who played a major role in settling some $10 million in lawsuits and potential lawsuits over loan commitments in the Kansas City area to make reorganization possible, strongly endorsed the plan.

Under the reorganization proposal, Lucas said, the new company will credit shareholders' accounts with 100 per cent value on the insurable assets. These were estimated by Greenberg at between $13 and $18 million.

"We tried to get offers on these assets, and we could not find anyone who would consider them without a discount," he declared.

Greenberg estimated that the final total of insurable assets may be about $15 million, which would be equivalent to 37½ per cent of total deposits, and coupled with the 12½ per cent now ready for a cash distribution, would make a total of 50 per cent.

THE REMAINING assets will be converted to cash by the state superintendent of banks under terms of the reorganization plan. However, Greenberg said that the new company may be able to take (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

She'll Learn The Sad Truth Today
Sharon McCarty, 7-Year-Old Accident Victim

Unaware Of Full Tragedy

Crash Survivor, Still Fighting For Life, Says, 'I'm All Right'

By CHARLOTTE BUCHEN

A BRIGHT-EYED, 7-year-old girl with pigtailed smiles wanly from her hospital bed at the sight of a new doll.

"Please give it to my little sister," she said precisely. "She's somewhere, and she's all right."

The Phoenix woman who held the doll fled the room to hide her tears.

Today, little Sharon McCarty will learn what her visitor already knew. Sharon no longer has a sister, or a brother, or a father.

THE CHILD, only her pretty face free from the cruel tracings of fire, will be told by the Rev. A. R. Snipes, chaplain at Memorial Hospital, that they perished in the blazing crash that ended their journey home to their Christian mission in Honduras.

"I just don't know if I could bear to tell her," said the only survivor of the July 12 tragedy near Gila Bend.

This is the 24-year-old mother, Mrs. Faye McCarty, faced not only with the loss of her missionary husband and two of her children, but all the money they had.

HOSPITAL AND doctor bills are mounting. And, in a physician's words, "It will be nip and tuck for the next two to three months for Sharon."

The little girl faces hours of skin grafting and a desperate fight against setback.

The mother, said by the Rev. Mr. Snipes to have more courage than he has ever seen, must have weeks of treatment for broken bones and burns.

Of the tragedy and her future, Mrs. McCarty said:

"I have faith in God. That is all that has kept me going, and it is all that I have."

MRS. McCARTY, her husband, Ernest, and their three driven from Central America children, in mission service for the Associated Brotherhood of Christians in Honduras, had for a furlough at home in Oklahoma and California.

After visiting her family in Oklahoma, they started for California, where McCarty's family resides. From there, they had planned to drive back to their mission.

Near Gila Bend, a truck struck their 1957 automobile from the rear. Mrs. McCarty, driving, and Sharon were thrown clear. Trapped in flames were McCarty, 31; Micah, 6; and Kathleen, 3.

THERE WAS NO insurance on the car or on the lives.

Only the mother and the little girl remain.

"I'm all right," Sharon said yesterday. "I like Mr. Snipes. He gave me the television."

"I dread telling her," Mr. Snipes said.

Food Lack Pinches Red Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—East German Communists yesterday exhorted collectivized farmers to work nights to try to end a severe food shortage.

Western observers speculated it might cost Communist Party Boss Walter Ulbricht his job.

Reports reaching West Berlin said all foodstuffs were growing scarcer in the Soviet zone.

The vegetable supply system was said to have broken down completely in the wake of an intensive campaign that collectivized all farms in East Germany by last April.

There are no privately-owned farms left in the entire "peoples' republic."

The Communists said the solution was more work. The official Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland called on farmers to work night as well as day, saying, "the night was not made only for sleep."

Western observers said morale in East Germany was declining with the food stocks. They said Ulbricht, the iron-fisted ruler of East Germany, might be in danger of losing his power and being made a scapegoat.

The East Berlin newspaper Berliner Zeitung said the districts of Potsdam, Rostock, New Brandenburg, Frankfurt-on-Oder, Magdeburg, and Leipzig had met only 40 per cent of their quotas of vegetable deliveries to East Berlin.

THE COMMUNIST Party charged that farmers were not making sufficient effort.

It appeared that passive resistance by farmers, unhappy at being forced, sometimes under threat of physical violence, into collective farms, had helped create the food shortage.

In recent months, East German Communists have admitted cases of sabotage and shirking. The supply lines from farm to market also were hampered.

The Communist-edited paper B. Z. Am Abend said 28 tons of tomatoes were shipped to East Berlin Monday, but only 10 tons were distributed to retail shops because there were not enough trucks.

Bread was unavailable in some shops yesterday. Meat, milk, butter, and eggs as well as vegetables and fruit were reported to be scarcer than at any time since the anti-Communist workers revolt of June 17, 1953.

Henry Cabot Lodge
GOP Vice Presidential Candidate

Economic War Front Demanded

CHICAGO (UPI)—Republican Nominee Richard M. Nixon launched his campaign for the presidency last night by proposing creation of a powerful new striking force to battle communism on the economic front.

Accepting the presidential nomination in a victory-for-free-dom speech, Nixon called for consolidation of all non-military cold war projects into one big program that would be under his direct supervision if he were in the White House.

Nixon told the wildly cheering 27th Republican National Convention that the new striking force would encompass such programs as foreign aid, information activities, and the exchange of persons with Communist nations. It would be separate from military programs.

Nixon accepted the nomination after the convention roared its approval of his choice of vice presidential running mate, handsome Diplomat Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts. Lodge also received a thunderous ovation from the convention.

The 1,331 delegates and the packed galleries also erupted with cheers when the convention chairman, Charles A. Halleck, read a telegram from President Eisenhower extending his heartfelt congratulations to "Nick and Cabot," the new titular heads of the Republican Party.

Mr. Eisenhower said he was confident the GOP candidates would defeat Democrats John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson in the November election because of their wisdom and government experience. But he warned they faced a tough fight.

Nixon and Lodge already had challenged Kennedy and Johnson to the toughest election campaign in the nation's history. Nixon told the convention he would campaign in every state. Lodge said he was ready to carry the GOP banner "Anywhere, anytime."

LODGE, chosen personally by Nixon for the vice presidential spot because of his experience in foreign affairs, was unopposed for the post. He received the necessary 666 votes for the nomination when Nebraska gave him all its 18.

The balloting went solidly for Lodge until the roll call reached Texas where one delegate, Edwin S. Maher, of San Angelo, abstained. At the end of the roll call, however, Maher gave in and let the Texas vote be unanimous for Lodge.

Maher said later that he wanted anybody but Lodge because he considered him "too liberal."

Nixon emphasized in his speech that the major task confronting the next president would be to meet the Communist challenge in the economic field, where Russia and its Communist satellites pose as champions of peace.

It is in this field, he said, that the United States must make an all-out effort.

Lodge accepted the GOP's unanimous vice presidential nomination with a warning that a "death struggle" with communism requires the nation's most able, experienced man in the White House.

Lodge told cheering delegates that on his record, Richard M. Nixon is the best available man.

Lodge, personally tapped by Nixon largely because of his experience since 1953 as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, officially joined the ticket when Nebraska gave him its 18 votes, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Infant, 1, Survives

Life Crushed From 9 By Oil Field Truck

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI)—Two women and seven children were killed yesterday when a heavy oil field truck smashed broadside into their automobile at an intersection.

The only survivor from the automobile that carried 10 persons was an infant, Connie Roberts, 1, who was critically injured.

The truck driver, John Bostick, 29, of Odessa, was admitted to a hospital in shock although he was believed to have escaped serious injury.

Witnesses said he got out of his truck, looked at the crushed car beneath it, and collapsed.

The victims were Mrs. Peggy Roberts, 34, and her daughter, Marcy Lynn Roberts, 6; and Mrs. Both Letterman, 29, and her children, David Paul, 1; Mary, 9; Joy, 5; Mona, 3; Susie 7; and Johnny, 8.

Mrs. Roberts's husband, Forrest Roberts, is a foreman at the Mid-Continent Plastics Co., in Odessa, and Mrs. Letterman's husband, L. K. Letterman, is believed to be a welding contractor.

Both men were out of town when the accident occurred. Letterman was in McCamey, Tex., and Roberts in Iraan, Tex. An ambulance driver said the automobile "was so crushed that it looks small enough to be picked up by hand." Ambulance

Big Welcome Home Awaits Goldwater

A MASSIVE demonstration is planned at Sky Harbor tonight to welcome Sen. Barry Goldwater home.

The greeting is under the official sponsorship of the Maricopa County Young Republicans.

The Young GOP started out with a band and a slogan, "Welcome Home, Barry."

Now they have offers of three bands, scores of slogans and indications that, in the words of a Young GOP spokesman, "Not only the young but the old, the long, the short and the tall will all turn out for the senator."

Goldwater, who will be accompanied by his wife and daughter, Peggy, is scheduled to deplane here at 7:45 aboard an American Airlane plane.

No formal program has been arranged. But the Young GOP says that an official greeter will be named.

Goldwater has not been told of the planned welcome home. But members of the Arizona delegation, some of them whom will be aboard the plane, have been let in on the surprise.
